1. CIPC Meeting:

The monthly CIPC Meeting was convened on 22 April at 1500 hours. The primary agenda item was the International Terrorism Study. In addition, the Committee was provided a briefing on the present status, and future enhancements, of the Decision Support and Information System for Terrorism (DESIST).

2. The Committee approved the Terrorism Study with recommended changes. These changes are being incorporated and the study was forwarded to you and the DCI on 13 May with the recommendation that it be tabled at an early NFIC Meeting. As a result of the CIPC review and approval, the Terrorism Study now contains 52 recommendations for improving our intelligence posture on this problem.

3. The DESIST system became operational in November 1984, and is 50 percent complete. To date, the system is comprised of 50 terminals and 160 users, operating around the clock. Moreover, in the future the system is scheduled to receive several enhancements, including a conferencing capability similar to that of FLASHBOARD. At present, the CIPC Members believe that DESIST and FLASHBOARD are complementary systems, and that FLASHBOARD should be continued until such time as all of its capabilities have been integrated into DESIST.

5. The meeting was attended by representatives of the intelligence and law enforcement communities, including the NIO and A/NIO for Counterterrorism and Narcotics. The working group reviewed the progress made to date on the recommendations included in the CIPC Narcotics Study and discussed a broad outline for the follow-up report. Written contributions have been requested from specific organizations, and our objective is to complete this project by June. The report will enable the Community to take a fresh look at how far we have come, and to identify those areas that have proven to be productive and those areas in which a greater investment of personnel and resources may be required.
